THE INTELLIGENT FARMER.
The Northern Neck Times does not unduly exalt the vocation of the tiller of the soil when it says "there was never a higher and more responsible calling than that of the farmer, nor one that requires the exercise of more brain power." But for many a day a sort of rude living out of the ground but successful farming is the result of the exercise of intelligence. The farmer, like men in other walks of life, is devoting his attention more and more to specialties. Much of the land now under the plow is devoted to the raising of the valley is a wheat section, and some of the higher altitudes in this and adjacent States are devoted largely to grazing and the breeding of domestic animals. In all these spheres of rural activity, thought and intelligent methods are essential to success. For instance, the observation of the farmer that thirty thousand bushels of wheat have been raised by the farmers of this State. This is to prevent imposition upon consumers of fertilizer. Every brand of fertilizer listed has been analyzed, and when the farmer buys it, he knows what he is getting. However, this is only a small part of what he needs to know. In order to fertilize intelligently, he should also have an analysis of the soil he proposes to cultivate, so as to know wherein it is deficient and what should be supplied in the fertilizer used, and he should likewise know the requirements of the crop he proposes to plant. Then he could not only supply that which the land lacks, but he could also furnish what is especially required by the plants he proposes to grow. Further than that, with a few prime ingredients which can be obtained at much less cost than prepared fertilizers, the farmer can compound his own fertilizer on his own premises and get an article that will answer his purpose more satisfactorily than anything he can find on the market. Fertilizers constitute a heavy tax on farmers in many localities, and the importance of obtaining them economically and intelligently, as a means to an end, cannot be passed over as a mere trifle. This is only one illustration of the need of thorough equipment as a condition of success on the farm. Such equipment not only gives dignity to the farmer's occupation, but it intensifies the interest in rural life and enhances the peace and pleasure of abiding close to the heart of nature.—Danville Register.

KENTUCKY'S MANY "ILLS."
Kentucky's hills are full of ills, And all the hills are filled with ills, And all the hills are full of ills, And all the hills are full of ills.
You see the feudists dot the hills, And camp along the little rills, Confronted to the busy stills, And thrashing for the brimming gills, And when the juice his system fills, Each feudist whines around and kills.
Now, if they'd only stop the stills, They'd cure Kentucky's many ills—Men would be spared to climb the hills And operate the busy stills.
However, this would mean more gills, And that of course would mean more ills, Resulting in the same old kills.
So all the hills and rills and stills, And all the hills and rills and stills, Are splendid for the coffee mills, And make more undertakers' bills.
—Chicago Tribune.

NORFOLK'S CHANCES ALONG THE RAPPAHANNOCK.
The people of Norfolk will one and all rejoice at the improvement of the steamboat service between this city and the rich trade section along the Rappahannock river.
Beginning with July 7th, the steamer Essex will leave this city twice a week for Tappahannock and all points below on the Rappahannock river. This service, it is understood, will be increased if the business obtained justifies a schedule of a boat three, four, five, six or seven times a week.
The Rappahannock river country is a very fertile section of Virginia. It has lacked railway development, although there has been talk of the building of an electric line between Fredericksburg and the lower country along the river. But cheap water transportation has precluded the carrying of freight, and there is a serious doubt that the country is sufficiently thickly settled to pay the expenses of an electric or steam line devoted mostly to passenger traffic.
Although Baltimore is by no means so convenient by cheap freight or passenger routes to the mouth of the Rappahannock as is Norfolk, the Maryland metropolis has hitherto practically monopolized the trade of this rich river country. Norfolk, content to look south into the Carolinas for her business has overlooked this vast and rich section of Virginia right here at our doors.
With the inauguration of the twice a week service between this section and the Rappahannock country, wholesalers can afford to travel their salesmen through the towns and country as far up the river as Tappahannock. They should get the best freight rates into this section of the country, and the result, owing to superior location, and the fact that it is able to establish, eventually, a paying business. With the growth of this business a more frequent boat schedule will be possible and one day the Rappahannock river trade will come to Norfolk, where it rightfully belongs.
The Dispatch would especially impress upon our business community the extreme desirability and the necessity of following up the paths which have been blazed for future trade and business by our commercial bodies. Ten or a dozen years ago the people of this section of the Rappahannock river country to immigration, as the peninsula country is now opening up. The trade of this river adds greatly to Baltimore's riches and can be made ours if we do not go after it. It is by seizing and developing the opportunities as the present that we hope to make of Norfolk a great city.
Richmond sufficiently appreciates this trade to be contemplating the building of a railroad to bring it to her doors. The business can be bargained to Norfolk.—Norfolk Dispatch.

Thought He Had Told a Story.
Dr. Talmage used to tell a story about an old presiding elder who had a great fondness for tobacco sauce. Not always able to get this in his travels through his district, he carried a bottle of it with him. This he always had placed on the table of the hotel where he stayed.
One day an old rustic sat opposite the venerable elder at dinner and helped himself freely to the tin. He got a big dose of it—in fact, he got a dose of the elder's tobacco sauce. He recovered from the effects. When he did finally stop coughing long enough to talk, he glared at the elder and said: "I've heard lots of preachers preach about hellfire, but you are the first I ever seen that carried it about with him."—New York Tribune.

Successful Belle's Advice.
"Yes, my dear, one could lay down rules for the charming of the other sex, but I said an old but very successful belle to a debutante, who, in spite of a beautiful face, it must be admitted, a failure as far as popularity goes. (Ardent admirers she has, but of temperate admirers and men friends she has none.) "One could rule three of them, all hundred and one, but there are two that I'd remember, if I were you, and you can afford to let the other take care of themselves. The first is, when talking to a man never 'run down' another woman. The second—and even if you forget the first, please remember the second—is never praise another man!"

Night Was Her Terror.
"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and would hardly get any sleep. I had occasion to see that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but when all other medicines failed, three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained ten pounds." It's also guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Ellis C. Richardson's, Kilmarnock, and T. J. Haydon & Son's, Irvington.

WHAT WIVES SHOULD REMEMBER.
That "he pays the freight."
That nine men in ten detest gossip.
That confidence begets confidence.
That there should be no place like home.
That the less said is the sooner mended.
That with all his faults you love him still.
That you should have no secrets from him.
That husbands have troubles of their own.
That he's "all right" when you know him.
That woman's best weapon is her weakness.
That he is more than half what you make it.
That wives are usually favored in this country.
That he likes to hear that the baby is his dead man.
That a man likes neatness in your attire at all times.
That "he" is in the house is a well-spring of pleasure.
That he is not in love with every woman he glances at.
That it is policy to let him believe he is "lord and master."
That a prompt and pointed answer does not turn away wrath.
That he does not go to sleep the same moment that you do.
That he expects you to look your best when you go out with him.
That 8 p. m. is 60 minutes past 7 o'clock, not 15 minutes to 9.
